

Model developed by Gail Voisin Executive Coaching called The All Together Now Advantage®

As an executive coach over the past two and a half decades, I feel honoured and privileged to have worked both one-on-one and in groups with some of the brightest minds and most brilliant executives in corporate America in a variety of industries. Over these years, I have developed a method which has since become a compelling brand called the All Together Now Advantage®. The diagram below illustrates this model.

Total Balance and Integration of Vision, Leadership and Wellness (A compelling journey; not a destination.)

The All Together Now Advantage® makes the case that by aligning Vision, Leadership and Wellness, both personally and organizationally, you naturally position yourself to achieve extraordinary success. You will achieve greater results while expending less energy. You also become more resilient for meeting future challenges. When understood and practised with commitment, the All Together Now Advantage® has had profound results for the hundreds of corporate executives I have coached. I believe it can be the same for you.

All Together Now is about the importance of integrating the key areas of vision, leadership and wellness under one umbrella to achieve extraordinary success in both your business life and personal life. It demonstrates that when executives align their personal and organizational vision with their leadership ability and wellness, they can live the life of their dreams.

*By introducing and linking key aspects of stress management and fitness to productivity and profit, Dr. John Marshall PhD., highly regarded Organizational Psychologist states: “I believe Gail has an integrated solution unlike anyone else in the world to date...By incorporating the key information related to vision, leadership, and wellness into an integrated solution, this book will be your guide to maximizing your performance and achieving a healthy, balanced life.”
